DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 12, 14-16, 20 and 22-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Colens 6,321,515 in view of EP 324322 (Elia), cited by applicant.

Colens discloses a robotic lawn mower with a chassis (1) and a cutting attachment (3). The cutting attachment is connected to the chassis by a suspension (Fig. 1) so that it can be raised a lowered (Col. 2, lines 61-65 and Col. 5, lines 17-18) when it encounters obstacles on the ground. The cutting attachment includes a motor (Column 2, lines 59-60). Colens states, "The cutting heads can be of the type described in the patent application PCT WO 96/242431." PCT WO 96/242431 discloses a cutting head with a cutting disk (4) on a shaft (3). The cutting disk has blades (5) mounted on the outer edges. However, Colens fails to disclose providing a bottom plate with extensions for guarding the blade against foreign objects.

Like Colens, Elia discloses a device for cutting vegetation that includes a cutting attachment. Unlike Colens, Elia discloses a bottom guard plate under the cutting disk. The bottom guard plate (6) is connected to a pin (15) and bearings (167) between the disk and plate. The guard plate includes coplanar extensions (between recesses 7) that extend out beyond the cutting blade (Column 2, lines 43-44). The extensions keep foreign objects away from the blade.

Art Unit: 3671

Elia states, “The protective disc 6 prevents the blade 3 from contacting the body of the operator or obstacles directly whilst enabling material which can penetrate the recesses 7 to be cut. (Column 3, lines 20-24).” The disk is capable of keeping golf balls away from the disk and to lift the cutter disk.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the cutting attachment of Colens with a guard of plate as in Elia, in order to prevent the cutting blade from impacting foreign obstacles.

In regards to claim 14, the extensions in Elia are prong with a rounded profile making hollows and tips with outer ends upwardly curved.

In regards to claim 15, the spacing between the extensions is a design choice based on the type and size of the objected that is unwanted near the blade. The specification lacks criticality for the space between the extensions.

In regards to claim 16, Elia shows 11 extensions in Figure2.

In regards to claims 22-23, the mower in Colens is a robotic mower for use on a golf course (Column 1, lines 22-25), which will have golf balls on it as objects.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 11/29/2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant amended claims 12 to include the limitations that the cutting attachment is connected to the suspension so that the cutting attachment can be raised and lowered. Applicant argues that this is not found in the prior art.

Art Unit: 3671

Contrary to Applicant's arguments Colens teaches allowing the cutting attachment to raise and lower when contacted by obstacles on the ground (Col. 2, lines 61-65). In the combination, since the extension is closest to the ground it would inherently cause the cutting attachment through the flexible mounting to lift. Therefore, the limitation is met.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
